

41 Harsh Truths Nobody Wants To Admit

~ Alex Hormozi

1. It sucks to not be liked, but it sucks more to not be yourself.
2. Define Resiliency as - the amt of time after an aversive stimulus, after a bad thing happen, that you return back to baseline behavior.
3. "If this income happened thousand time to me in a row, what would I think about it?"
4. The more you complain the less accurate your model of reality.
5. Everyone puts all of their blame on 3 ^{thing} circumstances - circumstances, you have other ppl & you have self.
only this serves you based on what do you do as a result of it.
6. fluid intelligence → peaks b/w 25-35
7. "The single greatest skill you can learn/develop is the ability to stay in a good mood in the absence of things to be in a good mood about."
8. What if I could just be in a good mood.
9. His theme this year → focusing on moments & on both +ve & the -ve
10. Maybe it wasn't a bad season, maybe it was just 5 bad days or 5 bad moments which I talked about the entire season.

Cosmic Significance → contextualizing personal issues within the vast of universe

11. Unfortunate irony → the skill set you often need to become successful in business is the 1 you need to get rid of to be happy in your life
12. Fear exist in the vague not in the specific.
13. "Let's play it out & see what actually happens"
14. We literally think that if we fail we die.
15. "The world rewards the specific ask & punishes the vague wish"
16. Find tiny small things to be tiny happy about.
17. Acronym of heal - Have a positive experience. Enrich it, Absorb, Link
18. You don't actually arrive at having good experience
19. All gratitude is playing pretend. Things you'll be grateful for will often pass you by without you noticing them
20. Prioritize Authenticity over external validation.
21. If an inconvenience would eventually be accepted, it can be accepted immediately.
22. "I'm open to the idea that I can be both useful & happy" (Not a trade off)
23. Become very specific about moment.

Desire of Novelty (quality of being new/original / unusual) what you're gonna do today & what you did → google doc. → 6 weeks

24. No matter how big your dream, you're gonna die. Everyone will move on. Do what you want.
25. People want opportunity but won't talk to strangers.
26. We are result of our actions not aspirations.
27. "Learning how to try" becomes a generalizable skill across all domains.
28. If I do it for an extended period of time & I take the feedback & I don't stop, I'll probably beat most people.
29. If you're invested all of this time into this thing you're getting per unit of effort way more back than you ever were in the beginning. The difference is you no longer feel the progress quite so much.
30. People who obsess about work life balance are typically mediocre at both. Obsessed people apply their obsession to everything & just call it life.
31. Lazy people don't know how to start. Weak people don't know how to finish. Successful people don't know how to stop.
32. Do so much work that it would be unreasonable that you fail.
33. If you're willing to suck at anything for 100 days in a row you can beat most people at most things.